War Summary of The Latest Events

The British have retaken most of the ground lost on Tuesday night in the desperate fighting around Longueval village and Delville Wood. Fighting continues along this section of the western line. South of Delville Wood the Germans were massing for attack Wednesday afternoon from the direction of Guillemont, but a galling fire from the British opposing force dispersed the enemy, whose objective, according to the British report, was Waterlot Farm. Four furious assaults on the farm were made during the day and night, but in each case British artillery repelled the advance. The assaults on Longueval and Delville Wood began on Tuesday afternoon and continued throughout the night. The enemy succeeded in gaining a lodgment in a corner of the wood, and here the fighting was desperate on both sides. A German force also gained a footing on the northern outskirts of Longueval, but in both places the British are driving the foe from his positions. The German losses in the two days' fighting are very heavy. Here, as at Verdun, the enemy is paying an appalling price for every attempted advance. The British left now menaces the German hold on Pozieres, an important junction on the Albert-Bapaume road. Attacks on the outskirts of the town are proceeding. The Germans are throwing every available man into the fight for Longueval and Delville Wood. Berlin reports make extravagant claims. The Germans hope by these counterattacks to check the British advance on Bapaume. General Haig's army is proving its fighting quality and endurance in one of the fiercest engagements of the war, and has practically halted the enemy's counter-offensives.

On the Verdun front there were no infantry attacks. The Germans bombarded the French first and second lines in the region of Hill 304. There was also a heavy artillery duel at Fleuty, but no infantry action. At Eparges the enemy attacked a small post, but were repulsed. A German aeroplane was brought down east of Soissons. The comparative quiet along the French front confirms the reports that German troops have been withdrawn from the Verdun region for use against the British. South of the Somme the French took some trenches and 60 prisoners at a point south of Estrees.

On the Belgian line artillery fire was directed against the German works in

FARM LABOURERS WANTED.

The Western Provinces of Canada have experienced an acute shortage of Farm Laborers for spring seeding and summer work this year.

Even when times were normal throughout Canada moreover, it was always necessary to bring from twenty-five to thirty thousand laborers from eastern points for the harvest season.

As voluntary enlistments have been very heavy and inasmuch as a successful crop is predicted by the experts, grave fear is being felt along the lines of the Canadian Northern Railway, on account of the difficulty experienced in obtaining labor, which means steady work and good wages for all who visit in the districts served by the C.N.R.

For further particulars apply to R. E. McLEAN, or E. McLAUGHLIN Station Agent.

Or write to R. L. Fairbairn, General Passenger Agent, 68 King St., E., Toronto, Ont.

LONDON, July 17.—British expenditures have now reached a total of more than $36,000,000 daily, according to a statement made by Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons today.

trenches and 60 prisoners at a point south of Estrees.

On the Belgian line artillery fire was directed against the German works in the regions of Boesinghe and Steenstraete. Patrol parties reported the destruction of the German works north of Dixmude and in the direction of Iletsas, as a result of a previous bombardment by the Belgian batteries.

The Russian pursuit across the Carpathians in the rear of the fleeing Austrians continues without halt. Unofficial despatches from Petrograd report that the enemy's line at Delatyn has been broken, and that Cossack advance guards have reached Hungarian territory. The Russian infantry is pouring through the passes on the heels of the enemy. The Russian advance in this region covers a front of about sixty miles. A Reuter Petrograd correspondent states that the Germans are forcing the starving peasantry to aid in the strengthening of the defences of Vladimir-Volynski in Volhynia. Farther north, on the Gulf of Finland, German aeroplanes bombed Russian shipping in the harbor of Reval. No details have been received from Russia beyond the fact that thirteen bombs were dropped, but the German official report states that the aeroplanes hit a submarine four times, and caused fires on the naval dock. On the Riga front artillery duels continue. On the Stockholms there was heavy gunfire. In other sections the Russians report favorable progress. A Vienna official despatch claims to have driven the Russians across the Pruth, southwest of Delatyn, and to have captured 300 prisoners and two machine guns, but the report is not confirmed.

In the Caucasus the Grand Duke's forces continue to harry the Turkish rearguard, and are making considerable headway south of Trebizond and south and west of Baidur. The prisoners in the last few days total 85 Turkish officers, 1200 men, and one heavy gun and five machine guns.

Britain's war bill has now reached the grand total of about $13,410,000,000. Mr. Asquith announced Wednesday that he intends to ask the House for another vote of credit next week. Britain's financial position is still sound. The Chancellor of the Exchequer still has a big margin of wealth on which to draw.

STORMS' CORNERS.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church held its annual lawn social last week on the village hall grounds. It was largely attended. The Odessa band, composed of ladies and men, gave excellent music and plenty of it. The lawn and grounds were prettily and tastefully arranged. ANNOUNCING THE NEW SERIES

f.o.b Toronto

This newest Overland is the world's most powerful low-priced car.

It has a 31½ horsepower in bloc motor that is a perfect marvel for speed, power and endurance.

By increasing the bore of the motor from 3½ to 3¾ inches we are able to offer a power plant which at 1950 R.P.M. develops full 31½ horse power.

Tests under every condition in all parts of the Dominion demonstrate that it easily develops better than fifty miles per hour on the road.

Speed of course varies under different conditions, but in practically every instance it has been getting fifty miles an hour and with ease.

We have scores of telegrams showing that twenty to twenty-five miles per gallon of gasoline is not unusual.

The performance of this car is almost beyond belief.

Take any other low-priced car on the market. Pit it against this new Overland. Compare them for sheer speed, for abundance of power, for riding comfort and economy, and you'll find this car will back anything else clean off the boards.

That's a strong statement, but a fact nevertheless.

Try it yourself and see.

Here are more important facts.

It has four-inch tires which are more than generous for a car of this size. Not only has it a large and roomy body, but it has an attractive, up-to-date streamline body.

It has the latest and most improved system of ignition.

It has the cantilever springs—the easiest riding springs in the world.

What's more, it's complete. Not a thing to buy. You get the finest Auto-Lite electric starting and lighting system, magnetic speedometer, one-man top, demountable rims and practically every accessory found on the highest priced cars.

From a driving standpoint, the new car is ideal. It's light, easy to handle and anyone can drive it.

Take one look and be convinced.

And mark these words—the car is destined to be regarded and referred to as one of the really great achievements of the great automobile industry.

Yet it only goes to prove how big production can cut cost and save you money.

First come, first served. Place your order now.

A Sty on the Eye.

A sty is not dangerous, but it can be most unbecoming and troublesome if not attended to at its very start. Sties are due to the irritation of the hair
follicle out of which an eyelash springs.
They should be opened as soon as pus
is formed, for they will not get well
as long as pus remains. For inflammation and scaliness add to vaseline fifteen grains of precipitated sulphur. In applying this ointment it is well to warm it a little, as it will not then be so sticky. Apply several times a day until the sty is gone.

Insulted.

Duels have been fought over the read with great attention. If you think you can add a few words to it and they suit me I consent to accept you as a collaborateur."

The manuscript was returned with a note thus: "Sir, I have read your ballad with the greatest attention. I leave to you the choice of the weapons."

GERMANY IS DEPRESSED.

Amazement at Success of Second Blow Gives Way to Anxiety.

ROTTERDAM, July 18. — The British army's new blow has caused the deepest anxiety in German hearts
when the forward movement, perhaps, is only in its first stages. It is fully realized that this success is not only of importance itself, but has infinitely a greater significance than the assault on the first line.

Whilst German headquarters were prepared for the necessity of giving way at some points when the British offensive was first launched they believed that the second line would be able to withstand all pressure.

The positions just captured were defended with great strength. After taking of the first line by the tremendous British attack efforts were made to reinforce the second line
with men and guns and troops
brought up, not from other fronts,
but large drafts of even fresh formations from depots behind the front and also in Germany.

The Germans reckoned on a repetition of the Neuve Chapelle-Loos-Champagne, when, by concentrating troops at the points threatened, they prevented any further advance.

That the second British blow succeeded is recognized as the most significant fact associated with any of the Allies' military operations
since the beginning of the war. It is possible that the Germans did not realize in time the tremendous force
the Allies would put into their blow,
and they did not abandon the offensive against Verdun.

Although a certain number of troops were hastened away to some districts, they were quickly replaced with drafts from depots.

The German Government, through the press, is represented the fighting
on the Meuse as of real importance
in the situation on the western front.
On the successful British offensive
the military critics are silent with unanimity which cannot be accidental, whilst all the newspapers give prominence to trivial German successes in the Verdun district.

A neutral traveler from Berlin states when the report came that the English offensive had really commenced the people were amazed, and for two days did not believe it. The amazement now, however, has given way to dismay. The moral effect of the British success is even of greater importance than the results achieved on the field. The British effort is a spiritual equivalent to an invasion of Germany.

F. B. McCurdy is Parliamentary Secretary for Militia Department.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 18.—A big development in administrative circles in Ottawa, to which much importance is attached, is the announcement made Monday afternoon that F. B. McCurdy, M.P. for Queen's and Shelburne, had been appointed
"parliamentary secretary for the Department of Militia and Defence." It is a new position somewhat analogous to that of the under secretaryship

BAIBURT IS CAPTURED

Russians Advancing Swiftly in the Caucasus Region.

Grand Duke Nicholas' Forces Have
Not Only Captured Important
City, but Have Occupied a Whole
Line of Turkish Villages—Turks Are Resisting Desperately Near Mochan but Without Success.

LONDON, July 18.—The official statement from Petrograd regarding the fighting on the Caucasus front announces swift advance by the Russian troops and headlong retreat by the Turks in a number of sectors.
The capture on Saturday night of the important city of Baiburt is announced together with the occupation of a whole line of Turkish villages. South-west of Mochan the Turks are showing desperate resistance, but the fighting is in favor of the Russians.

In the region of Irzindjan 18 Turkish officers and 100 Askaris, with a machine gun, were taken. A Cossack detachment also cut off and captured 29 officers and 282 Askaris and a machine gun, as well as regimental records, stores, and ammunition. On the upper Tchuruk important progress was made, and the Russians are consolidating the captured positions.

South-west of Mush the Russians dislodged the Turks from all their strongly fortified positions. A Turkish division, recently arrived from Thrace, abandoned its tents and retreated, partly towards the Eastern Euphrates and partly in the direction of Diarbekir.

The official report says:

"Black Sea: During the last
cruise one of our torpedo boats sank 26 sailing boats.

"Caucasus: On the night of the 16th our brave Caucasian army carried by assault Baiburt, which is an important strategic point of convergence. In many sectors the Turks fell back in haste, destroying their depots. In this region and in the basin of the upper Tchuruk we made a further considerable advance and consolidated the Turkish positions
which we had captured.

"Thus during the recent days our valiant army, with its well known pluck and courage, gained a series of battles in the regions of Baiburt, Mamakhatun, and Mush."

Russians Force Teutons to Retreat.

PETROGRAD, July 18.—In Volhynia the Russians in the region of Ostroff and Goubine have put down heavy Teutonic attacks, launched in mass formation, and forced the Teu-tons to retreat to avoid the danger of being outflanked, according to the Russian official communication issued Sunday evening. Upwards of 3,000 men were captured in the fighting. The official statement says:

"In Volhynia, in the region southeast of Svinusky (in the vicinity of Lutsk), the enemy in mass formation took the offensive at several places. By energetic counter-attacks we repulsed them and continue to develop our success.

"On many sectors in the region of Ostroff and Goubine we overthrew
the enemy despite his stubborn resistance, and he retreated hastily,
owing to the danger of being outflanked. One of our regiments cap-

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, July 17.—Winnipeg wheat closed ¼c lower for all three months today. Oats were ¼c lower for July, ½c higher for October. Flax was ¾c higher for July, ¼c lower for October and ¼c lower for December. The reason of the slight decline, in face of the strong cables and black rust reports, was that the advance on Saturday was too quick.
The trade was extremely nervous and the prices kept hopping about within narrow limits.

The trade was medium, mostly spreading. Exporters were on both sides of the market, but no new business was reported. Cash demand was only fair.

Fight in Sydenham.

OWEN SOUND, July 18.—Saturday morning Magistrate Creasor imposed a fine of $30 and costs upon Robert Artley, of Sydenham Township, on information laid by Albert Gillesby, a neighboring farmer, who charged Artley with assault. The case arose out of a long-standing feud in the neighborhood of Sheppard Lake. Artley struck Gillesby in the face, smashing his cheek bone so seriously that he had to go to the hospital for an operation. Artley laid a counter-charge against Gillesby and his son, but the charge was dismissed with costs. The feud has caused a lot of sensational talk as the Artleys are heavy land owners in the section. In fining the accused, the police magistrate severely reprimanded Artley, and his brothers, all of whom are unmarried, and said that they should be serving their country
instead of fomenting trouble.

Paper No Longer Barred.

LONDON, July 18.—Abbe Lemire, of Hazebroucke, priest deputy in the French Chamber, has been permitted to resume his ecclesiastical duties,
and the ban has been removed from his paper, Le Cri de Flandre. Abbe Lemire fell under the displeasure of the Catholic Church owing to his attitude in the dispute between Church
and State over the Separation Law.
Having made an apology and render-

broucke, which is an important town
for military purposes, the Abbe has been restored to the favor of the Pope.

known as the great advocate of the

Prof. Metchnikoff was the author received $20,000 as his share of the

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free.

BRITISH PENETRATE SINAI.

Two British Columns Have Gone 60 Miles Into the Interior.

LONDON, July 18.—Two British columns have just completed successful operations on the Sinai Peninsula, where Turkish and Arabian bands have been making raids along the Suez Canal. The columns, operating from Tor and Abu Zeeneima, on the Sinai shore of the Gulf of Euez, penetrated 60 miles into the desert and hostile country.

"Prisoners and live stock were captured," says a War Office statement. "Despite opposition and snip-ing the British suffered no casualties."

The official report says:

"The commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean expeditionary force, telegraphing Saturday, reports that two columns operating from Tor and Abu Zeeneima, on the Sinai shore of the Gulf of Suez, have returned to their bases after successful raids on the enemy posts in the peninsula.

"Sixty miles of difficult country
were traversed, prisoners were taken and live stock was secured. Despite opposition and considerable sniping
no casualties were sustained by either of the columns."

Fierce Battle in Italian Theatre

LONDON, July 18.—Fierce fighting took place Sunday in the Italian theatre of war, according to reports received from both Vienna and Rome.

The Austrians state officially that ten violent counter-attacks delivered in succession north-east of Monte Rasta resulted in heavy losses for the Italians.

Italian troops have stormed and carried Austrian positions at the entrance of the Posina valley and have gained ground in the valley of

LONDON, July 18.—Replying to the German Admiralty announcement of Saturday that a 7,000-ton British auxiliary cruiser and three guard-
ships were sunk in the North Sea

British Admiralty Saturday stated:

"There is no truth in the report

Revolver Lying Near.

WINDSOR, July 18.—With a bullet from a 32-calibre revolver in his right temple, the body of a man, as yet unidentified, was discovered late Sunday afternoon a few yards from the Detroit River, at the rear of the Giradot Wine Company's factory, Sandwich.

Jos. Bondy, who made the discovery, found a revolver by the side of the man, who had evidently been dead for about an hour, according to Dr. J. S. Labelle, coroner for Essex County. There were no marks on his clothing beyond the name of "Simon Ackerman" on the coat collar.

The dead man was well dressed in a black suit, wearing tan shoes and a white straw hat. He was about 30 years old, five feet nine inches tall, and weighed about 175 pounds. In one of his pockets was 42 cents.

OLD TIME EGG HOAX.

Joke That Did Not Result Just as the Perpetrator Expected.

Away back in the days when Miller was preaching the near end of the world there were two men living in Lawrenceville, neighbors, who may be named Brown and Jones, who were like unto Jonathan and David. Jones was a chicken fancier. Both, like most people in that day, discussed Millerism.

One Saturday night Brown, who had read somewhere that if a pointed stick were dipped in oil anything written with it on an egg, and with the egg held to the fire, would remain indelible.

Brown wrote on an egg, "The world will come to an end on Oct. 20, 1844," the day Miller had stated, and placed the egg in one of Jones' nests, expecting Jones would come to him as soon as he found it and after a good laugh he would tell how it was done.

But Jones, as soon as he could get his clothes on, rushed to the home of Rev. Richard Lea. The news spread like wildfire, and persons coming to town to church carried it, and all Sunday there was a throng calling on Jones to see the egg. Brown viewed the crowd with a much troubled mind, and at last he went to Jones and told the story. Never after that did Jones speak to Brown.—Letter to Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

STABLED IN THE OCEAN.

This Horse Is Not Only Henpecked, but Lives In the Sea.

There is a horse that eats no oats, hay or corn. He is stabled in the deep waters of the Mediterranean and the Atlantic ocean and pastures in submarine fields of seaweed. He wears bony armor and a tail curved like a monkey's, and yet he's a fish. His animal head has given him his popular name—sea horse.

With all these varied characteristics the sea horse is not fast, vicious nor handsome. Like his cousin, the pipe fish, he is a poor swimmer; also, he is henpecked. Mrs. Sea Horse makes him take care of the children.

To help him in his work as nursemaid he has a pouch beneath his tail, formed by folds of skin and completely closed except for a small hole in front. In this pouch the eggs are deposited, and they remain there until they are hatched.

There are about twenty species of sea horses in the waters of the globe, a common one being the short snouted variety. Around Australia is a sea horse, which is decorated with numerous spines, terminated by leaflike appendages. These are so near the color of the seaweeds among which they live that they appear actually a part of the vegetation.

A SINGAPORE DISH

Ricetafel Is Not a Mere Meal; It Is a Whole Banquet.

A SORT OF CULINARY MARVEL.

It Contains About Everything From Fish to Dessert, but Its Great and Crowning Delight Seems to Be the Highly Odorous Bombay Duck.

More odds and ends of humanity are thrown together here in Singapore than in any other city in the world. Singapore is halfway between Arabia and Japan, halfway between India and China. On the street they stream past—Sikhs, Tamils, Parsees, Armenians, Arabs, Malays, Mohammedans, Filipinos, Chinese, Portuguese, Siamese, Japanese, Javanese—as if they were made up for a procession, some with no clothes and some swathed in them.

Every day at noon on the bill of fare in Singapore you find a dish called ricetafel, which will live long in my memory. It is the most fearfully and wonderfully made dish in the world. It staggers the imagination to think of what it is composed. An ordinary intellect stands appalled when it begins trying to figure out what the dish is made of. Only a Kelvin dare try to resolve it into its elements.

The first day I ordered it in a reckless, care free moment. I had never heard of it before and supposed that it was just an ordinary single dose dish, but in a few minutes I began to find out that it was a tafe of another color. An ordinary sized boy came up bearing a plate of rice and gave it to me. Hardly had the boy turned aside when another boy came up with some meat. I piled on the meat, but just as I was picking up my knife and fork a larger boy came up bearing a plate divided off into sections piled to the cargo line with spices, cinnamons and other tropical products. I looked to see if there hadn't been some mistake, but his confident manner and bearing showed plainly that I was to put them on too. I did, even though it looked as if I were going on a cruise, and had just leaned back to study the mound when another bun bearer came up. I began on his dish and worked my way around, helping myself to the more prominent articles, and after he had gone on I picked up my spoon and was just wondering which side to make my first encroachments on when another outrider came up with another dish of odds and ends. After him came others, some little and some old, some shy and some bold, the line forming at the left and rhythmically tramping by, while I threw on and rounded up until it began to look as if the mound builders had gone back into business again. After the tail of the procession had gone by, I located a favorable spot and went to work.

These are some of the actual things that were in the final draft: Rice, curried meat, mincemeat balls, fried onions, shredded onions, white onions, banana fritters, hard boiled eggs, sliced cucumbers, Chinese macaroni, pea-

THE MODERN TORPEDO.

How It Travels and Its Effect Upon Striking a Vessel.

The present day torpedo is a very different sort of weapon from that used half a century ago. It is shaped something like a cigar and is about twenty-three feet long and twenty-one inches in diameter. It weighs considerably more than a ton, and its construction costs from $5,000 to double that sum.

It is made to travel in a certain direction in a fixed time and to explode when it strikes some solid object, such as a ship's bottom. A torpedo of the largest and most modern type will tear a gaping hole in the stanchest ship ever built. The nose or "explosive head" of a torpedo contains the deadly charge of high explosives, nitroglycerin and gun cotton being oftenest used.

When the torpedo strikes its target a tremendous detonation follows instantly, driving in both the outer and inner "skins" of a vessel. The hole it makes in a ship's bottom varies in size, but is seldom less than ten by thirty feet. The torpedo travels toward its victim at the rate, roughly, of about a thousand yards a minute. The distance and rate of speed have to be calculated to a nicety before the torpedo is discharged. It is kept to its destined course by perpendicular rudders in its tail.

The modern "dirigible" torpedo was first used in a naval war during the Chilean revolution of a quarter of a century ago.

Forcing Flower Seeds.

It is a help to soak all hard seeds, such as sweet peas, nasturtiums, balsams, moonflower, etc., at least twelve hours and to file especially large seeds, such as canna and moonflower. This is done by rubbing the sharpest end (or any part away from the germ) over a file, just enough to have the white show. Filing must be done before soaking. Sweet peas may be soaked three or four days.

Another way to hurry coarse, slow to germinate seeds is to force between cotton flannel. Take double pieces of cotton flannel, wet thoroughly, place seeds between them and put in a warm place. Keep cloths moist all the time, and seeds will sprout in from one to three days. Transfer carefully to the ground with the root sprout down.—Farm and Home.

Composition of an Army.

In the United States an army is made up as follows: One hundred men constitute a company, four companies a battalion, three battalions a regiment, three regiments a brigade and from three to four brigades a division, although we have no division classified as such in our army.

In Germany and Great Britain there are about 20,000 men in a division and 40,000 in an army corps. In the German organization a division of infantry is made up of two brigades, a brigade of two regiments, a regiment of six battalions. A cavalry division is composed of three brigades of two regiments each and two or three batteries of horse artillery.

TRAVELS OF THE ORANGE.

CHINESE PRINT

Queer Old Ancient Method Used by Many Na

Chinese hold that the art was discovered in China years before the Christian discovery of the printing, A. D. 95, they print cloth cut in the form of method employed to this native Chinese printers is as follows:

No printing press is used, the nature of the Chinese not admit of it. When engraved, the paper is cut is ready one man with his a large number of sheet. The block to be printed is perfectly level and secured printer has two brushes, stiffer than the other, which he holds in his hand and uses. He dips it into the ink block with it, taking care not to wet too much or leave it too wetted too much that it would be blurred; if too wetted would not print.

When once the block is in proper condition he can produce four impressions without brush into the ink again.

The second brush is used to rub the paper with a small de- sure that it may take the ink. This it does easily, for, no with alum, it receives the ink. When it comes in contact with the ink it only necessary that it should be passed over the sheet with a greater degree of pressure and repeated portion as the printer files more or less ink upon the

THREE RACIAL INS

One Reason, Perhaps, For Taken In Baseball

How shall we explain the interest in baseball in In baseball we have a game of three of the most deep instincts—the instinct to fight and to strike. During the life history of our race has come to him who could straighten, run the swiftest, the hardest. To throw something is almost a boy as to breathe.

Throwing, batting, running longer of any service in mind, but they were the survival in the distant past reinstates those ancient instincts brings a thrill of cherishes. Any one who has ever handled and assumed the attitude of the batter knows the thrill which is explained calling that his distant just that attitude beat the real club many an opposing man or beast, and those clubs in this position and quickly survived and transferred.

The awkward throw of the left arm throw of boys known. The plays of girls own set of instincts recall its of primitive. "We are tion to the item of sacrifice than any other Moslems. In every town a supreme offering of a ram or he goat takes place at the door of the principal mosque. Immediately after it is struck by the official imam in presence of the multitude it is flung on the shoulders of a stalwart Moor, who, exerting his utmost strength, runs like a deer through the narrow streets, pursued by a rabble. The poor animal is pelted with stones by boys and is jeered at with execrations from every house, as it is reputed to be carrying the sins of the people. The man rushes along with his burden till he reaches the door of the cad's palace. If the animal is still breathing the augury is excellent, for good luck is to be expected all through the year. But if the ram is dead all sorts of evil prognostications are muttered.

Not Such a Fool.

"Here's a strange case," said Mrs. Spotter to her husband. "A man they called the town fool died, and they weighed his brain. It was heavier than the average."

"Is that all it says about him?"

"Yes—except that he was for many years entirely dependent on well to do relatives."

"Hub, he was no fool! If you have well to do relatives, why use your brains?"—Judge.

The Secret of Success.

"There has been altogether too much talk about the secret of success," says Dr. Russell H. Conwell in the American Magazine. "Success has no secret. Her voice is forever ringing through the market place and crying in the wilderness, and the burden of her cry is one word—will. Any normal young man who hears and heeds that cry is equipped fully to climb to the very heights of life."

Know Not "Impossible."

Know that "impossible," where truth and mercy and the everlasting voice of nature order, has no place in the brave man's dictionary; that when all men have said "impossible" and tumbled noisily elsewhere and thou alone art left, then first thy time and possibility have come. It is for thee now; do thou that, and ask no man's counsel but thy own only and God's. Brother, thou hast possibility in thee for much; the possibility of writing on the eternal skies the record of a heroic life.—Carlyle.

Who Is to Blame?

It is a very conservative thing to say that there are four women to every man in the church membership of America. Many people are wont to lay the blame for this upon the churches. Quite a number of folks would like to lay it upon the men. Some fault the women for it. Is it not possible that the responsibility rests upon our social structure?—Bernard I. Bell in Atlantic.

Matter of Sentiment.

"What makes you go in through the kitchen?"

"I don't know your servants very well," replied Mr. Cumrox. "Some way, the front hall seems kind of formal and distant. Around at the kitchen steps they've got an old doormat with 'Welcome' on it."

banana fritters, hard boiled eggs, sliced cucumbers, Chinese macaroni, peanuts, French beans, Indian chutney, coconut, red fish, shrimps, fried fish, fried chicken, goose liver, chili, limes and Bombay duck.

I'll take my word for it that every single one of these destroyers was in my rice tafel.

I put Bombay duck last, for I know that the other ingredients would rather not associate with it. You could readily understand their attitude if you had once tasted Bombay duck, for there is no other thing its size in the world that makes such an impression on you. It has the worst odor of anything I ever went up against, and without wishing to boast I have smelled some things that were highly praised in their line, but for hard, consistent smelling day in and day out Bombay duck has them all in the Yankee division. In comparison with it limburger cheese has a delicate perfume.

How it ever got that name is more than I know. It is really a dried fish, which, broken and powdered, lends a seasoning, but as for myself I would rather take my seasoning in some other form. Old residents and missionaries who have been in the country a long time say that after a time a person comes to be very fond of it, but personally I know that there could never be anything between us—unless it was distance. It is all that I can do to stay at the table where one of the parties is an old resident or a missionary a long time in the service.

The people in Singapore do not call ricetafel a dish. They consider it a meal. And that's what it is. It looks as if it had been meant for the noon-day repast at a Woodmen log rolling. Many and many a person here has ricetafel at noon and nothing else. In fact, after eating a ricetafel there isn't room for anything else. A person then wants to crawl off and go to sleep. And that is what everybody does in the suburbs of the equator. The shops all close at noon for a couple of hours while everybody lies down and sleeps off the effect of the ricetafel.—Homer Croy in Leslie's.

Ancient Basket Makers.

The Worshipful Company of Basket Makers dates back to 1569, but basket making was a recognized craft in London more than a century before then. In 1463 basket makers "and other foreigners" were banished by the common council to the old manor of Blanche Appleton, and in 1538 even those English basket makers who were still permitted to live in the city were similarly dealt with, on account of their indifference to the danger from fire.—London Chronicle.

Venice of Brazil.

Pernambuco is called the Venice of Brazil on account of its numerous lakes, rivers, waterways and an immense coral reef with which nature has completely encircled the city and inside of which all but the very largest ocean vessels anchor.

TRAVELS OF THE ORANGE.

At One Time It, With All Else Yellow, Was Barred From Holland.

Oranges were grown in Spain and Italy for centuries before they made their way to this country.

The first recorded appearance of the fruit in England is in 1290, when a Spanish ship arrived at Portsmouth with a cargo of fruit, out of which the queen, Eleanor of Castille, purchased fifteen citrons and seven oranges. The next notice is in 1399, when pomes d'orring figured among the dishes at the coronation banquet of Henry IV. By the sixteenth century they had become common enough. In 1500 the lords of the star chamber had oranges served daily at dinner at a cost of twopence a day. The first mention of their use as missiles occurs in the diary of Henry Machyn, who tells us that on May day of 1559 the revelers at the queen's palace at Westminster threw eggs and oranges at each other.

Oranges were for some years a prohibited fruit in Holland. When the Batavian republic was established the badge and color of the Stadtholder's family became so hateful to the popular party that, not satisfied with expelling their prince, they passed a law forbidding the sale of oranges and carrots and ordering all persons who grew lilies or marigolds in their gardens to pluck up the plants and destroy them. This prohibition remained in force until 1806, when Napoleon made his brother Louis king of Holland.—Exchange.

Flight of a Swallow.

Francis Thompson, an English poet, was a great lover of birds. One day in autumn he fastened to one of the wings of a migrating swallow a small piece of oiled paper on which were written the words, "Swallow, little swallow, I wonder where you pass the winter." The next spring the swallow came back to his nest in Thompson's garden at the usual time. The poet saw something tied to his leg. He caught the bird and found a small piece of oiled paper on which was this answer: "Florence, at the house of Castellari. Cordial greetings to the friends in the north."

How to Get It Back.

"I've lost a wallet containing $600," said Mr. Baker excitedly to a friend. "How much reward shall I offer for its return?"

"Where did you lose it?" asked the friend.

"In New York city."
"Well, if you want it back," said the friend, "you'll have to offer at least $700 reward."

Sounded Ominous.

"Did the dealer say he would send our coal around next week?"

"Yes, he said he had our coal slated for Tuesday."

"Slated, eh? I don't altogether like the sound of that."

Much the Same Thing.

Gillet—Look here! Did you tell him I'd been swindled again?

Fillet—Well, I told him that you had made another of your characteristic investments.

Luck.

Luck is that which has successful neighbor what has conspired to prevent your coming what you would. Luck is good or bad, whether you are content with neighbor's success or are your own failures.

Luck is a handy little thing around, for if it does not it at least affords you a kicking point. Also, the more of its name relieves you of the necessity of making many excuses. Luck is a barb which prevents disaster from poaching domains, but if it does not it at least have the satisfaction of palping upon it all reasons for defeat.

East Indian Monk.

A naturalist who has traveled in the East Indies says: "The expressions of man's appearance are interesting. The expression of emotions is certainly almost universal. They sit and stare at him and snarling with anger at drawing back their heads in the gesture of abhorrence and movements indicative of shock raged feelings. But predominate expression of absolute horror coming from those we consider degraded consins, is to our very aggravating."

Wonderful!

"Just think of it! A whole dinner—soup, fish, entree, two vegetables, dessert at a for a dime!"

"Wonderful! Where could such a dinner at such a price be had?"
"Nowhere; but just this Exchange."

STORY OF A LAWSUIT.

Queer Way In Which an Umbrella Case
Was Decided in Poland.

The Central Law Journal says that the old fable of the lawyers and the oyster, in which, the ownership of an oyster being contested, the lawyers ate
the oyster and gave a shell to each of the litigants, is matched by a story of a lawsuit which a Russian journal relates as entirely authentic.

In a city of Poland, it appears, two men came into court with a suit over the ownership of an umbrella which had been left in a restaurant. Each one introduced evidence to prove that the umbrella was his. Being unable to match the wisdom of Solomon by dividing the umbrella between them,
the judge postponed the case. Pending its decision the umbrella was left in the judge's private room.

Later, as he left the court to go home, the judge found that the weather was rainy. He went back to his room, took the umbrella which was in litigation and spread it over his head in the street. On his way home he went into a restaurant and left the umbrella on the rack, and when he was ready to leave the place he found that it had been taken away by some unknown customer. Then he bought another umbrella and took it to his courtroom.

When the case came up the litigants
were confronted with it, and neither was able to identify it as his own.
The court thereupon fined them both for invoking the law on a frivolous pretext, and they departed empty handed and decidedly "unsuited."

where capital is respected, but not

SOCIAL LIONS.

A Bit of History Showing How the Term Came Into Use.

When you refer to a popular man in society as a "social lion" did you know that you are drawing on a bit of very remote history for the expression? The lion is anything but a social beast, and the figurative use of his name to designate a popular person came down to us
in a most curious and roundabout way.

When Henry III. came to the throne of England, in 1216, there was a curious dispute as to the significance of the figures entering into the armorial bearings of Great Britain. There were three animals, "passant gardant," and they were spoken of as leopards. As a matter of fact, they were supposed to be lions. It was argued that there had been three leopards in the Tower of London in the reign of William the Conqueror and that these had given the motif for the emblem. Or it might have been that the Norman oppressor kept three leopards as a concession to the Saxons he had subjugated.

Whatever the facts may be, Henry was satisfied that the conventionalized
animals on seals, banners and coins
were really lions, and in order to impress the fact he had three live and unmistakable "monarchs of the desert"
brought to London and placed in the Tower. It at once became the fashion to visit the lions. When guests from out of the city were being entertained
the great treat was that of a visit to the "lions of the Tower." After the sight had become commonplace and the meaning of the animals had been lost to sight the phrase remained. The "lion" was a statesman, actor or some other celebrity who held popular favor.

FLIGHT OF THE ALBATROSS.

Wing Movements That a Chance Snap
With a Camera Revealed.

During the voyage of a vessel from British Columbia to San Francisco the photographic test was applied to a long disputed point in natural history.
A large albatross had been following
the steamer and keeping pace with it
for several hours, and the wonder grew
among the watchers on board the ship
how the bird was able to fly so swiftly
while apparently keeping its wings extended without flapping them. As this is a common method of flight with the albatross, the explanation used to be offered that the bird took advantage of slight winds and air currents, and was so able to glide upon what might be called atmospheric slopes.

As the albatross sailed alongside the ship, about fifteen feet away, the naturalist snapped his camera at it and obtained a photograph that astonished
him and his fellow passengers.

The photograph revealed, what no
eye had caught, the wings of the albatross, each some five feet long, in the act of making a downward stroke.
The explanation naturally suggested was that more or less frequently the bird must have made a stroke of this kind with its wings, although the eye
could not detect the motion, and that the camera chanced to be snapped at precisely the right moment.—

LOFTY SAN MARINO.

The Only Nation in the World Without

San Marino is the smallest republic
in the world and one of the most ancient, being over 1,000 years old. It is situated on a plateau 2,000 feet high,
ten miles from the Adriatic sea and
about sixty-five miles east of Florence.
It is a walled city with watch towers
and contains twenty-seven square miles.

The men quarry gray building stone,
which is carried to the sea by oxen.
The wine cellars are caves in the rock,
and outside the openings tables are placed and food and wine served. The women cook over charcoal stores in the open street or square and people buy.

In the evening, after the stagecoach

An Ancient Idea of the North Pole.
 The north pole is the place of great- est dignity in the world, and the peo- ple who dwell near it "have a wonder- ful excellency and an exceeding pre- rogative above all nations of the earth." How blessed we may think this nation to be, for they are in perpetual light and never know what darkness mean- eth, by the benefit of twilight and full moons, as the learned in astronomy do very well know, which people, if they have the notice of their eternity by the comfortable light of the gospel, then are they blessed and of all nations most blessed. Why then do we neglect the search of this excellent discovery, against which there can be nothing said to hinder the same?—"Hakluyt's Voyage" (Sixteenth Century).

Got His Reply.
 A funny man indulged in a practical joke recently. He put an advertise- ment in a paper for a wife and re- quested each candidate to inclose her carte de visite. It was a foolish thing to do, but one of the candidates served him out very well by sending the fol- lowing letter: "Sir, I do not inclose my carte, for, though there is some au- thority for putting a cart before a horse, I know of none for putting one before an ass."

Fast Fliers.
 The great German naturalist Gaetke relates that with the aid of a telescope in his observation of migrating birds he had seen the plover and curlew, not fast flying birds as we know them, travel four miles per minute, 240 miles per hour, in the attenuated air of high altitudes.

Changed the Koreans.
 Koreans were quick to quarrel in an- cient days and won a bad reputation on this account. At one time, a histo- rian explains, fatal quarrels became so frequent in the country that drastic measures were necessary. A law was promulgated ordering adult males to wear on all occasions a china head dress shaped like an inverted flower pot. It was impossible to fight wher crowned with this fragile gear, and the penalties for removing it were se- vere. The first offense entailed fifty blows on the soles of the feet, and the second meant decapitation. This de- cree had the most soothing effects, the nature of the inhabitants changed as if by magic, and Korea was called the Land of the Morning Calm.

Dumas and a Dog.
 Dumas pere, designing to be in the fashion during the sporting season, purchased a fine dog at an equally fine price. The next day he set out shoot- ing in the environs of Marly. A par- tridge rose, and Dumas fired, wound- ing it. It fell about 100 feet away. Away went the dog, but simply gave the bird the coup de grace. Dumas, enraged, took the ramrod of his gun to whip the dog. The dog took the ram- rod between his teeth, rose on his hind legs and began to dance a polka. The famous author then perceived that the dog had not been trained to retrieve. His fame had been made in a circus. Disappointed, Dumas gave Fido to the first peasant he met.

CHARM OF ODD NUMBERS.
 Ancient Superstition That Lingers in Present Day Customs.

Odd numbers have always and every- where been held in peculiar rever- ence, and if that is mere superstition, then it only proves that, despite our civilization, we are still superstitious.
 A hen is always given an odd num- ber of eggs to be hatched. Why?

There is no reason at all except su- perstition. Salutes from warships, forts, etc., are always given in odd numbers, yet no valid reason can be adduced. It is a remnant of the old "odd numbers are lucky" superstition.

Virgil records all sorts of charms and spells practiced round odd numbers— never even ones. And we still, after two failures, make another attempt and murmur hopefully, "Third time lucky!" The odd number again, and the old superstition!

Seven is the favorite Biblical num- ber, and old divines taught that it held a mystical perfection. It's an odd number. Three is the number of the Trinity—an odd number again.

Falstaff, in the "Merry Wives," is en- trapped for the third time. He himself said, "They say there is a divinity in odd numbers" because of the old be- lief that the odd time would be lucky.

Physicians of other days always in- sisted that "bleedings" should be in odd numbers—one, three, five, etc., and never an even one.

COUGH THE RIGHT WAY.
 It Is Safer For Yourself, Your Lungs and Those About You.

The following directions as to how to cough are given by Dr. A. A. Playte in the Journal of the Outdoor Life:

Fold your handkerchief so that it is about five inches square. Place it flat in the right hand, if you are right handed, and with this hand hold it tightly over the mouth. Press the hand on the mouth, as to hold it loosely over the mouth will not accomplish the pur- pose. Now, instead of coughing and trying to muffle the sound in your throat or mouth, muffle it with your handkerchief. Practice it until a per- son ten feet away cannot hear you.

The sound made in coughing is due partly to air passing over the vocal cords, partly to air going through the bronchial tubes and trachea and partly to the resonance produced in the chambers above the trachea. This sound can be almost wholly avoided and the irritation to the lungs and air passages prevented by keeping the air passages open and letting your hand- kerchief do the muffling. Now, instead of expelling 120 cubic inches of air at each expiration, you will expel a small- er amount, with more comfort to your- self and to those around you and with much less harm to your lungs.

WEST JUBILANT
OVER PROSPECT
OF GREAT CROP

"I have been building railways in
the Canadian west and have been thru the western country every summer for 37 years, but I never saw the crops look so good as they do at this time or promise a harvest so abundant," declared Sir Donald Mann, vice-president of the Canadian Northern Railway system, upon his return from an inspection tour that carried him to the Pacific coast. "I went out by the northern route thru Edmonton," he continued, "and back
by the southern route thru Calgary.
I was over the grain-growing districts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Everywhere indications are for the biggest crop in our history.
It seems hardly possible, of course,
that we can exceed the wonderful crop of 1915, but we certainly will not fall below it. The 1916 crop today looks better than the 1915 crop
did a year ago."

Office Ornaments.

"Yes, ma'am," commented the office- factotum whom long tenure of office had made a bit censorious, "some of these here young ladies about this of fice does precious little work. They seems to think they's intended for of fice ornaments."

Then, seeing a shade cross the lady manager's face, he hastened to add re- assuringly, "But, ma'am, you ain't no ornament."

Study of Synonyms.

Little Dulcie was asked by her teacher to define the word "whimsical." "It means 'odd,'" she replied. "And now," the teacher went on, "please write a sentence containing the word properly used."

Hesitatingly the little ten-year-old took up a pen and after a moment's thought wrote, "There are two kinds of numbers—whimsical and even."

CANADA A LAND OF MILK AND HONEY

Word has been issued that the Economic and Development Commission, which was appointed almost a year ago, has got busy at last and will presently evolve a program which will make Canada a land of milk and honey for the disbanded armies of Europe and other immigrants. This is good news. Better late than never. May their deliberations bear fruit. We have had previous surveys of our resources, natural and unnatural, but they have always been pigeon-holed, the idea being to soothe public feeling by reporting, but not to do anything that would disturb the vested interests. The report on the High Cost of Living is a case in point—a mighty big book, but no moral to be carried out.

However, the Economic and Development Commission is said to be in earnest—that is to say, as earnest as the Borden Government will let it. It realizes that the great need of this country is population—that Canada must be filled with people, if this country is to reap the reward of its sacrifices, shoulder the war debt, create traffic for the nationalized railways, and one way and another realize its mortgage on the Twentieth Century. The great object of the Commission will be to devise means and contrive inducements to get people back to the land.

Naturally the first step in getting the people back to the land will be to get the land back for the people. Just how this will be done must be left to the Commission. A stiff tax on idle land would probably ease a lot of it back to the Crown. The rest could be bought at a fair price and land bonds issued by the Government, which would discharge the debt by convenient instalments and at the same time provide a sound investment for our loose money. War bonds, land bonds, railway bonds—all these are the natural means of raising the wind and the Government need not be told that the people are more than willing to lend their money

North Perth Bye-Election

Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away, an analysis of the North Perth bye-election would indicate that the Liberal victory was a spontaneous expression of resentment on the part of the electors against Toryism in Canada, as manifested by the extravagance and incompetence of the present Ontario Government and the impotence and graft of the Conservative Government at Ottawa.

During the short campaign of two weeks, rural North Perth was never busier, the farmer endeavoring to utilize the good hay-making weather, following an exceptionally wet season; and nothing that was said or done in rural North Perth by either Party influenced the voters to any great extent. The meetings that were held were very poorly attended, and it is questionable whether much of the material printed by the party papers, pertaining to the bye-election, was read by the farmers during the campaign, owing to the above conditions.

The Government endeavored in every way possible to distract attention from the extravagance and tried to make Bi-lingualism and incompetence of their administration, Prohibition the issues. They raised a big cry, because the Liberals saw fit to contest the riding, and used loyalty as a bogey in such a way that it appeared as a big stick over the heads of the electors to compel them to vote Tory or be branded as disloyal and pro-German.

Mr. Hay appealed to the electors to elect him and thus strengthen the hands of the Opposition, which would tend to a still greater check being kept upon the extravagance of the present Government.

Undoubtedly the successful result of the North Perth election for the Liberal cause is largely due to the candidate's personal popularity. On the other hand, the tide of public opinion against Toryism, supplemented by the illogical claims of the Conservative campaign managers, is known to have contributed in a marked degree to the defeat of the Government candidate.

MR. ROWELL IN LONDON.

The following special cable from London appeared in the Mail and Empire on July 13th:—

"On his arrival in London yesterday, Newton Wesley Rowell, K.C., of Toronto, leader of the Liberal Opposition of Ontario, drove straight to the House of Commons, where he was given a seat in the distinguished strangers' gallery, arriving just as Mr. Asquith began his statement on Home Rule. Mr. Rowell, who is accompanied by his secretary, Mr. Main Johnson, expects to remain a month on this side and will spend the time looking after the interests of the Canadian soldiers in the hospitals and training camps, and if possible, in France. He will also study the general situation here as between military, industrial and agricultural demands, with a view to assisting him as member of the Ontario War Commission."

more than willing to lend their money on Government securities whenever they get a chance. Their experience with the domestic war loan proves that. As a matter of fact the people would rather lend directly to the Government and draw down their five per cent. interest than turn their money over to the banks at three per cent. and let the banks make the difference. It must have shocked the Borden Government to see how easily they could raise money from the people of Canada whenever the people were given a chance.

Having got the land back, the next thing the Commission will need to consider is how to get the people on it. The theory is that the returned soldier will become a farmer because he has followed an open air life in muddy trenches, shell craters, and such. This is a beautiful theory, but it will not work out in practice unless the land is made considerably more attractive to him than the battle terrain. He has seen a lot of plowing done—with shells—and he doesn't like it. What inducements can a country life offer him which will outweigh the inconveniences—the loneliness, the isolation, the bad roads, the high freight rates, and the grinding tyranny of the food usurers of the city who let him do all the work and themselves pocket all the gains?

The returned soldier will not care to lead a lonesome life—he has been used to a lot of company. The Commission will have to suggest measures by which social intercourse can be promoted—village centres and such. Moreover, it will have to argue down the Borden Government's hostility to hydro-electric light and power schemes like Sir Adam Beck's, which aim to make farm life attractive by relieving it of drudgery, providing city conveniences, and facilitating sociality by means of rapid, cheap and easy transit. Not only must the Borden Government get over its dislike to this popular plan of public ownership, but also the Hearst Government and other Governments which have shown a tendency to play into the hands of monopolies. When the Commission answers satisfactorily these two questions, "Why Does the Farmer's Son Leave Home?" and "Where Shall the Hired Man Wash His Feet?" it will have gone a long way towards solving the problem of putting the soldier on the farm and keeping him there.

explanation of her perpetual youth, says: "Up to forty I stunted myself in nothing. After forty I took to a comparatively strict diet, and since then have eaten no red meat and drunk only white wine and soda. I never go to bed early."

Politely Managed.

"I met a footpad the other night."

"Did he demand your money or your life?"

"He wasn't that crude. He said he regretted that it would be necessary to put me to pecuniary inconvenience and possibly subject me to physical peril and that the exigencies of the moment were such that the laws customarily relied on for protection would have to be suspended. So I handed him my watch and pocketbook."

Various schemes are broached to lure the disbanded soldier to the abandoned farm and anchor him there. One proposal takes the shape of indigent widows imported from England—indigent widows preferably with five or six orphans each—so that the returned soldier will not only get an indigent widow if he wants one, but a half a dozen little indigents, too. The idea is that one can't be too generous in this matter of semi-ready families—besides things are always cheaper when one takes a quantity. Looking this scheme over we do not believe that it will attract the returned soldier, even when we include the warm welcome of the widow's smile and the musical laughter of the six little children, both of which items are mentioned in the prospectus. The fact is that the disbanded soldier, especially if he is a Canadian, will be keen on picking his own wife and the chances are that he won't pick a widow at that. He will want to start something for himself. After the war there will perhaps be a million more women than men in this country, and a returned hero, even if he has only one arm to hug with, and one leg to walk with, will have a large range of choice among the most beautiful maidens in the world. Under such circumstances, he would be a fool to choose anything less than the best. You can take it from me that the widows, unless they are young and rich, have very little chance. As for indigent widows, they won't get a look in.

The Commission will advise, no doubt, that farming be made attractive, and if they follow that train of thought to its logical conclusion they are bound to point out that the best way to make farming attractive is to make it pay. Where the treasure is there will the heart be also. Of course, everybody knows how to make farming pay—good roads, cheap freight, co-operative marketing. The only question is, would the Borden Government have the courage to carry the various suggestions out? For instance, would it give the Northwest farmers free wheat and raffle its friends the millers? Would it do anything to bridge the gap between hogs—eight cents on the hoof and bacon thirty-seven cents in the pan?

TEUTONS RETREAT BEFORE THE RUSSIANS

Petrograd, July 18.—The Teutons have retreated nearly ten miles in Volhynia under the swift advance of General Kaldein's left wing.
In their heavy retirement, several thousand more prisoners, a number of heavy guns and large supplies of war materials have fallen into the hands of the Russians. The retreat was made necessary when several Russian regiments broke through the German front and threatened to surround a party of Gen. Linsingen's army.
The Russians have advanced their lines to the north bank of the River Lipa and are strengthening their new positions on the entire front. The advance widens the Russian salient extending into the Austro-German front south-east of Kovel, thus removing the danger of crushing enemy attacks
on both sides of the Russian wedge.
All along the eastern front the Czar's armies have suddenly resumed their initiative.

RUSSIANS ACTIVE IN NORTH.
Berlin, July 18.—The Russians under Gen. Kuropatkin continued their strong offensive on the Riga front
yesterday, penetrating German trenches
at some points, but being ejected
afterwards with heavy losses, says
an official statement issued to-day as follows:
The official statement on operations along the eastern front follows:
"Army group of Field Marshall Von Hindenburg: The Russians continued their strong attacks south and southeast of Riga. These broke down with sanguinary losses before our positions. At places where the Russians entered our trenches they were ejected
by counter-attacks.
"Army group of Prince Leopold:
There was no incidents of importance.
"Army group of Gen. Von Linsin-
gen: The situation generally is unchanged. Russian attacks west and south-west of Lutsh were completely repulsed.
"Army group of Gen. Count Von Bothmer: There have been minor outpost engagements."

GERMANS ARE TO BREAK PLEDGE TO UNITED STATES

Berlin, July 17.—The active campaign for resumption of submarine warfare in its previous form has assumed new importance, from an agile to-day by Eugene Zimmerman,
general director of the Lokal Anzei-ger, whose views, as past events have shown. Usually reflect the opinions held in Governmental circles.
Referring to the reasons which Great Britain gave for abandoning the Declaration of London, Herr Zimmerman contemplates the possibility that Great Britain will compel smaller neutral states to adopt an unfriendly, perhaps a hostile attitude towards the central powers, or even to close their frontiers complet-ly against them. He then cites in shaped Germany's policy at the time, included the wish to preserve the goodwill of neutrals, and adds:

"But if Great Britain succeeds in making neutrals passively or actively hostile to us, one important reason for Germany's decision at that time would cease to exist. It makes no difference whether neutrals yield to British orders through sympathy or through fear.
"We can only strike a balance
again of all political and military factors and choose what is most useful for Germany, which at best secures German victory."
Herr Zimmerman then intimates in a veiled manner, being unable to discuss this phase more freely, that the submarine power of Germany has undergone a favorable change since spring; evidently meaning that either their numbers or their efficiency have been increased considerably. He concludes his article with the assertion that all signs indicate a new decision on the submarine question will be necessary very soon.

HEAVY FIRING MAY PORTEND BALKAN DRIVE

PARIS, July 18.—Official advices received from Saloniki under date of Monday say that cannonading is in progress along the entire Saloniki front.
"Allied aeroplanes burned part of the Bulgarian crops in the region of Monostir," the statement says.
"There is cannonading along the whole front."
MAY MEAN BIG DRIVE.
The information given out by the French authorities in regard to the situation at Saloniki is not sufficiently explicit to indicate whether the entente allies are preparing an offensive movement such as would be preceded by a general bombardment. A drive from the Saloniki front has been predicted for some time during the summer. A Saloniki despatch of several weeks ago said that an allied offensive in Macedonia had been arranged for the middle of May, but that it had been postponed and might be expected in July, at the latest. There are some 120,000 Serbian troops on this front, several hundred thousand French and British soldiers. It is generally understood the allies have 600,000 or more available men for a campaign. Opposed to them are the Bulgarians with unknown numbers of Turks, Germans and Austrians. It has been reported that Bulgaria's allies have withdrawn troops recently on account of the offensive campaigns
on the French, Russian and Caucasus fronts.

SYNOPSIS.

Dudley Larnigan, district attorney, because of his fight on the vice and liquor trusts, is killed by an agent of a secret society, the committee of fifteen. The fight is continued by his son, Bruce, who is elected district attorney, and by another son, Tom. Bruce is in love with Dorothy Maxwell, whose father is head of the insurance trust.

NINTH EPISODE

The Insurance Swindlers

Suggested by JOE MITCHELL CHAPPLE, Author
 of "Heart Throbs."

ACCIDENTS at the Great Eastern lumber mills were of so frequent occurrence that when Big Jim Blake was felled under a heavy, collapsing timber and picked up for dead the affair did not cause more than a passing ripple in the affairs of the great establishment. The management of the Great Eastern has a habit of smothering the news of accidents—when their employees were the victims. It was in the little white cottage on Elm street, near the factory yard, that the tragedy struck home. The sadly smiling woman, with the two chubby children clinging to her skirts, who greeted the gruff workman sent ahead with the news of the accident, jabbed for a moment at her eyes with a corner of her apron and prepared to receive the motionless body in the automobile ambulance.

"Jim!" she cried. "Jim, my Jim!"
 The tired eyes in the white face slowly opened.

"Thank God, Martha, for the insurance! It will come in handy for us now!"

She smiled bravely back at him. The insurance! How like the big, unselfish nature of Jim to think of the insurance and protection for her and the kiddies first! And so at 10 o'clock the next morning, when it became apparent that Jim Blake was doomed to a long siege in bed, if indeed he were to recover with his life, she put on her she turned away, but as her wan little figure vanished the smile faded from his face. He had work to do—grim work. The company was one of the strongest branches of the so called insurance trust and, as such, deemed itself above the law, immune from legal investigation. Tom turned finally away, his hands deep in his pockets, his face wrinkled in somber thought. He did not notice the skulking figure in the doorway of the building which glided unostentatiously after him. The fifteen kept their audacious antagonist under surveillance night and day.

Reaching his rooms, Tom saw in a newspaper a challenge from the very concern that was the object of his investigations. "The Accident and Life Insurance Company Invites Any Investigation of Its Books and Records From Any Accredited Source."

He knew that Roger Maxwell, father of Dorothy, the fiancée of his brother, Bruce, was the guiding spirit of the concern. Was Roger Maxwell implicated in a plot to defraud the public? Tom shuddered and threw the paper from him. He would take the insurance men at their word, and if there was crooked work, heaven help them!

Had Tom Larnigan been present at a gathering of the remaining leaders of the fifteen in their private office that afternoon he might have been a shade less resolute in his sudden determination. Stanford Stone, as usual, was in the presiding chair, and it was his curtly grim voice which stated the purpose of the session.

"Larnigan is on the trail of the insurance trust, gentlemen. Unless we get him first he is certain to deal us another disastrous blow. I suggest that we leave Tom Larnigan's fate in the hands of four picked gun men whom I have selected for their discretion and marksmanship. Larnigan cannot escape them. They have orders to follow him to the death. If our man escapes, Brother Maxwell the crisis must be met by you in this instance as the most interested party."

Roger Maxwell staggered as he rose from his chair, and his face was haggard when he passed through the door. Behind him Stanford Stone smiled cynically at his retreating figure.

As Tom Larnigan left his hotel in a taxi to visit Ben Travers he no-

lescing from the injuries, which for a time had threatened an untimely death, crumpled the paper convulsively. "The scoundrels!" he hissed. "The murderous scoundrels!" There was no doubt in his mind as to the cause of the tragedy and its purpose. "But I'll have them yet! I'll hound each one to his grave or prison if it needs the remainder of my life to do it!"

Had any one been fated to look in on Roger Maxwell at that moment the spectacle presented by the usually spruce, dignified looking insurance president would have been a shock. Maxwell, huddled over his desk, was seeking, as a last resort to ease his conscience of its burden, by telling the truth to a dead man, whose lips could never open against him in real life. Summoning a messenger the president directed the boy to carry the envelope to the Larnigan home. It was not until then that Roger Maxwell prepared to leave his office.

At the Larnigan cottage the occupants were clustered in the living room, listening with bated breath for the rumble in the street which should announce the arrival of the black wagon with the body of the son and brother. But hour succeeded hour without the expected sound. Bruce was on the point of persuading his mother to retire when a hurried step sounded outside, the front door was flung open, and Bruce was facing his brother Tom.

Tom grinned at the other's stare and flung his arms over his mother's shoulders. "It takes a hard knock to kill a Larnigan," he chuckled. "Suspended animation, old man. I looked dead enough, but the doctor suspected the true facts and managed to bring me around in his office." A half hour later Tom was summoned to the door by a peal of the bell. A messenger boy extended a long envelope. It was the confession of Roger Maxwell—the confession that had never been meant

HOW BLOTTERS ABSORB

Being a Simple Explanation of the Capillary Attraction.

Every student of physics knows that water will run up a narrow capillary attraction. An inverted tube in water has a suction for the water—that is, becomes wet by the water to it. The amount is limited by the weight of the liquid itself. If the hand is withdrawn in water and your finger is wet. The line of contact between the hand and the water is gauged by the weight of that clings to the hand.

Imagine several hands joined together in water, but not touching each other. If this composite formed of ten single hands would attract ten times as much water as one hand would attract and surface. So a wisp of hay placed in water will remove ten times as much of the fluid clinging to one spear. Bushes will remove a certain amount which will be proportional to the Accident and Life Insurance company. It was a big building and the offices of the insurance company within were very glittering and very pretentious, but a black lettered sign coldly announced that the company had just passed into the hands of a receiver.

Mrs. Blake started back with a gasp—the kind of dry sob which comes to a woman only under the most poignant distress. The insurance company a failure! And all the little savings of three years swept away! But this was not the worst. How was the Blake family to exist during the long weeks ahead? How were Jim's doctor bills to be paid?

A strong, cheery voice spoke at Mrs. Blake's shoulder. "Is there anything I can do for you, madam?"

The little woman whirled to look into a frankly smiling pair of blue-gray eyes set in a tanned, resolute face, and Tom Larnigan, for the speaker was he, removed his hat and offered his arm.

"Let us go some place where I can talk to you," he said quietly. "I have an idea that your story is only one of many which I have heard today. You see, I am government special officer investigating just such frauds as I strongly suspect the company is attempting to perpetrate now on an innocent public." He threw back the lapel of his coat and showed the little silver star of government authority. Mrs. Blake unhesitatingly followed his directions. Almost before she realized it she was sobbing out her story.

"You must let me take the place of the insurance company," he insisted. "How much did your policy call for?"

She hesitated. "Twenty-five dollars a week for three months in case of disability from accident."

"Here is $100. I will see you before that is exhausted, and we will see what we can do for your husband." He rose. "Keep up your courage, Mrs. Blake. I am sure that I can help you."

"How can I ever thank you?"

"Don't try." Tom smiled again as

As Tom Larnigan left his hotel in a taxicab to visit Ben Travers he noticed that two men were following him. Once out of sight, Tom spoke to the chauffeur.

"I want you to change places with me for an hour," he said coolly, showing a twenty dollar bill. "It's a joke on some friends."

For a moment the man stared, and then he winked. Three minutes later Tom, in the overcoat and cap of the chauffeur, drove slowly up to the entrance of the hotel where Ben Travers had his rooms, descended from his seat and entered the building.

The two gun men fell back with curses when they found the driver inside the taxicab. Travers welcomed Tom warmly and announced that he had bought the Daily Independent to fight graft. Tom then changed clothes with a negro bellboy and walked out to the taxicab with a trunk on his shoulders, while the two gun men, three feet away, smoked serenely, unconscious that their victim was at their elbows. For a moment Tom debated whether or not to enter the taxicab himself, but instead walked around the corner of the hotel and successfully eluded his pursuers. He at once proceeded to the Accident and Life Insurance company's offices and pushed his way into Roger Maxwell's room.

"I have come to see your books," said Tom curtly, showing his star. "I would like to start my investigation at once."

For a moment Maxwell continued his wild stare, and then he gathered himself together with an effort. "Certainly," he stammered, pressing a button, which called a secretary. "Show this man to the vaults, Jones," he ordered as the call was obeyed. Tom bowed and followed his conductor outside. Hardly had the door closed when Maxwell picked up his telephone. "Is that you, Stone?" he whispered hoarsely when his connection was established. "Young Larnigan is here to see the books. He has escaped our trap. What shall I do?"

"Where is he now?"

"On his way to the vault."

"Let him get inside, then, and close the door!" was the curt answer.

"Close the door?" echoed Maxwell dully.

"Certainly. It is equipped with a time lock, of course. You can say it was an accident. It will be hours before it can be opened again."

Roger Maxwell hung back the receiver and paced the floor, with his face bathed in cold perspiration. It would be deliberate murder! Maxwell approached the vault, glanced stealthily over his shoulder and then lurched toward the heavy door. There was a clang of metal and then a hoarse cry of dismay from the clerk at the nearby desk, who sprang forward just in time to catch Maxwell's reeling form.

"For God's sake, what have you done, Mr. Maxwell? Tom Larnigan is inside!"

"It was an accident," stammered Maxwell. "Get help at once. Don't stand there staring."

Hours later when three experts from the safe concern opened the vault they found the body of Tom Larnigan stretched on the floor. A physician, who had been hastily summoned, knelt over the form and shook his head solemnly. "Dead," he said.

the confession of Roger Maxwell—the confession that had never been meant for living eyes. Tom caught his hat from the rack and let himself softly out of the front door. He was determined if possible to keep the confession from Bruce—Bruce who would give his life to avoid giving Dorothy Maxwell pain.

Roger Maxwell, in his library at midnight, started to his feet with a cry that was almost a shriek. Tom Larnigan stood before him. "Go away!" he moaned. "Go away!" Slowly, accusingly, Tom extended the sheets of Maxwell's confession. Maxwell rumbled to the floor. Tom darted to his side just as Dorothy entered the room.

"I fear your father is very ill," he said gently. "Better call a doctor."

"But—but—how"—Dorothy stammered.

"I will explain all later," said Tom evasively.

The early morning newspapers carried the news of the apoplectic seizure of Roger Maxwell and announced that his life was despaired of. Bruce hurried to the Maxwell home. Dorothy met him with a sad shake of her pretty blond head as he sought to take her in his arms.

"Not now," she said, motioning him away.

Without a word Bruce turned and made his way back to the street. How was it all to end?

There Was a Time When Was Only Two Feet

The variations which lead formation of a new species, sensible, they stretch over a period of time, that their survival from generation to generation must be very slight. Take the horse, for instance.

The development of the horse to stretch over a period of 3,000,000 years, or from the eocene times, an animal less than a hundred pounds, to of late tertiary times, the much like the superb creature today, five feet high and 1,000 or 1,200 pounds.

If this animal increased only one-quarter of an inch years he would be six feet high, 2,000,000 years. So, if him 3,000,000 years to develop increase in height must have less than one-fourth of a 10,000 years.

Think of it! Our horse of today is increasing or diminishing that rate and the fact never during the whole period. In same—one-eighth of a pound dred years, and he would weigh pounds in less than 2,000,000 rate of increase that our scientists hardly detect in a century.

LET IN THE LIGHT.

Faded Carpets Are Not as Pitiful as Faded Cheeks.

Fresh air enthusiasts are familiar enough to most of us, but we hear less of enthusiasm for light. Darkened parlors, darkened bedrooms, darkened sickrooms are too common.

Sir B. W. Richardson, the eminent London scientist and physician, declared that when the professors of healing enter a sickroom their first words in most cases ought to be Goethe's dying exclamation, "More light, more light!"

The light of the sun is God's own microbe killer, germicide, disinfectant, prophylactic, sickness healer. There is no physician, no chemical antidote, no compounded prescription to be compared with sunlight. Without it nature could not perform her functions. Man, beast, bird, insect would fall victims to the deadly gases that would prevail. The horrid mists and deadly gases are dispersed and decomposed by the action of light.

Let it in, everywhere! Let the light in more and more abundantly. Faded carpets are not as pitiful as faded cheeks. Spoiled cushions are trivial compared with spoiled health. Darkened rooms are too suggestive of darkened lives.—Christian Herald.

TIRES OF A MOTORCAR.

Why They Are Found Heated After a Long and Fast Run.

It is well known that after a long and fast run the tires of an automobile are found to be very hot, and many have supposed this is the result of the friction of the tire on the road. The Scientific American says that such is not the case, at least as to the greater portion of the heat.

"The real cause of heating," says that magazine, "is the internal friction of the tire itself, for as the tire is being constantly deflected by contact with the road the various piles, or layers, which compose the tire do not act uniformly, and consequently there is more or less motion between them that results in friction and heat. The greater the change in shape in the tire as it contacts with the road the greater will be the friction.

"Of course the harder the tire is pumped the less will be the friction, but it is evident that, while a perfectly rigid tire would generate but little heat, it would fail in giving easy riding. So we must put up with some heating and consequent wear of the tire. The subject is one that is being successfully studied by the tiremaker."

Hanged the Clever Forger.

Of curious petitions against the death penalty being enforced one recalls the eighteenth century case of William Lyland, who was sentenced for forging a bill for £7,114 on the East India House. The forgery was a work of art. No less than thirty signatures were imitated, and at the trial not one of the victims could swear that the signature was not his own. However, with the help of the paper manufacturers Ryland's guilt was brought home. Then came the petition of his friends. So clever a man ought never to be hanged, they

Cunning of the Castor Oil Plant in Protecting Its Seeds.

Dressing them up to look like foul tasting bugs, this plant protects her children from hungry birds. If it were not for their disguises the children might be eaten and never have a chance to grow and become big plants. The wise mother plant realizes this, hence the masquerade. It's the castor oil plant.

To the average person anything relating to castor oil is not regarded as much of a delicacy. Birds, however, think otherwise. The seeds of the plant are like candy to them.

So the mother plant schemes to protect them. When she sends them out into the world she clothes them in variegated and fantastic dress until the seeds resemble coccinella beetles.

Now, if there is anything birds dislike more than anything else it is a coccinella beetle. As a result they make a wry face when they see the castor oil beans and pass them by. These seeds are oval and about a Military Salute's Origin.

The military salute had a curious origin, if tradition is to be believed. It is said that it originated in the days of the tournament, at which a queen of beauty was chosen to preside. The knights and their esquires and all who took part in the tourney on presenting themselves before the queen lifted each one a hand level with the brows as though dazzled by the light of her presence. A nicely thought out compliment this, and, though its significance is now forgotten, the natural dignity of the gesture has preserved it as an everyday mark of recognition of a superior rank.—London Chronicle.

Don't Talk Too Much.

Recently a voluble salesman was trying to close a deal with a good customer. The salesman was doing all the talking, and the buyer was becoming not a little annoyed. Several times the customer started to speak, but the salesman would choke him off and start on another line of argument. Finally the manager saw what was up and suggested to the seller that he allow the buyer to say something. This the buyer did and quickly. He said that he had been trying for half an hour to tell the salesman that he would take the goods. — Farm Machinery.

Cremation In Ancient Greece.

Cremation obtained among many ancient peoples. Especially did the Greeks find spiritual grandeur in the concept of the soul arising from the ashes of the dead—the natural body—into the empyrean, to dwell thenceforth with the stars. Cremation was, indeed, an honor denied the bodies of suicides, those who had been struck by lightning and others deemed to have forfeited the favor of the gods.—Scientific American.

FIRE BAGS AT SEA.

The Kind They Used in the Day of the Old Tinder Box.

Every whaler and sealer that sailed the seas in the days of wooden ships carried a fire bag. This was a tarpaulin bag about a foot long and six inches wide lined with waterproof material, with interlinings of oilcloth and thick flannel. Into this was placed the flint and tinder box for kindling fire, and the bag was then securely fastened with double flaps and tied to keep its contents dry.

It was the special duty of the second mate to look after the fire bag and in case of shipwreck to attach it at once to his person by means of stout straps provided for the purpose. Thus if officers and crew were cast away on some deserted shore in the desolate arctic circle the means of obtaining a fire to warm themselves by and to heat food and drink would not be wanting as long as the precious fire bag was safe.

The steam whalers and sealers of the present day still carry a fire bag stowed in the lifeboat with the bread and water, but now it is of rubber and contains half a dozen tin boxes of matches.

Double Eyed Fish.

There is a fish equipped with bifocal eyes, one-half of the lens for seeing above the surface of the water and the other for submarine use. This characteristic also gives the fish its popular name—double eyes.

The fish inhabits the shores of South America. Sometimes they swim with the eyes half out of water. Examination shows that each lens is divided into two parts by a dark band. The half above the band is out of water and the other half below the surface.

Naturalists tell us that the fish's eyes became "double" from its practice in swimming with them half submerged.

Steam shelled industry out of the home as one she'll peas, and put it in the factory. The family, father, mother and the children, tagged after, and home survived merely as a place to eat and sleep.

Applied to transportation, though, steam did even more. It dissolved the population which had caked and clogged in one parish for 1,000 years and made it fluid to run uphill about the earth, uphill from low income to a higher. Nobody lives now where he was born if he can get away. We're here only till something better somewhere else turns up. What Do You Know About The Maxwell Car

THIS is the time of the year when more people are considering the question of "what car to buy" than at any other time of the year.

This community has its full share of people who will soon be driving their first car or a new car to replace the old one.

Now, we know that we are going to sell Maxwell Cars to a great many of these people—depending upon how many we are able to acquaint with the merits of the Maxwell.

The generous value offered in the car is so evident—its past record is so full of good performance—owners speak so well of it—that when the buyer knows these things, he is eager to buy a Maxwell.

In order to tell as many people as possible about the merits of the Maxwell Car we are going to spend a lot of money in the next few weeks in this paper advertising Maxwell merits to those who do not know them.

The reason—we want to sell as many Maxwells as possible this season. Our future allotments will depend upon how many Maxwells we

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

For maximum profits at minimum labor and expense the Canadian berry crops surpass the majority of farm and garden products.

Uniformity of yield and steadiness of market prices are characteristics of the berry trade. If the supply of fresh fruit ever catches up to the demand the surplus may be turned into preserves. All loss is thereby avoided, and profits are doubled.

Berries are valuable products on small farms, as the bushes usually may occupy ground which is otherwise almost worthless. They may fill up fence corners or the idle spaces in orchards. It is seldom necessary to use a choice bit of land for these crops, but the return can be safely reckoned at the rate of $150 to $250 an acre. This extra money is picked up in time which can be spared from the principal crops of the farm. Spring planting is safe and is quite generally favored.

In selecting plants one needs to consider ripening and shipping qualities. A grower wishes both early and late berries. For instance, the Plum Farmer black raspberry ripens early and is a delicious fruit. Berries are large, thick meated, juicy and sweet. They pick easily and stand up and carry well. In quality, firmness and productiveness they are all that could be desired. The plants are hardy and vigorous.

Then the Gregg is a late fruiting black raspberry of fine quality. This is one of the best known late berries. It is a good shipper and is an excellent variety for evaporating. Berries are large, regular, glossy black, with grayish bloom; quite firm, sweet and of the best quality, with that delightful flavor which distinguishes the black raspberry. These berries give early and late supplies and will always sell at high prices to town customers. There is a medium berry also which may be worked into the program. This helps to make a full and profitable season. The Cumberland is a fine, large berry, ripening in midseason. This is the largest of the raspberry family and is of such a handsome appearance that it is sure to bring the top price.

Bushes are healthy and vigorous.

The Cuthbert has long been regarded as the best of all red raspberries, not only on account of its fine shipping qualities, but for its size, color and richness of flavor. The plant is a strong grower, with healthy foliage. The Cuthbert is one of the reliable varieties that can be depended on to bear a profitable crop of berries nine seasons out of ten.

St. Regis is the only variety of raspberry that gives a crop the first year the plants are set out, and it gives two crops every year afterward. St. Regis begins to ripen in June and continues to bear fruit until frost. This is truly an everlasting red raspberry. The berries are large, bright crimson of the highest quality, with true raspberry flavor. It cannot be surpassed as a table fruit. No garden is complete without raspberry bushes, and a full acre may well be devoted to berry culture.

There are three distinct classes of raspberries—red, purple and black. They do best on sandy loam, but will grow in any soil that is fairly well drained. Set the bushes in rows about six feet apart and three feet apart in the row. The cane should be kept well cut down to five or six of the strongest near the parent plant. Cut out and burn all the old canes as soon as they are through fruiting.

The Rathbun is a leading blackberry. It is luscious, of the highest quality, with a fine polish and sufficiently firm to carry well. A large proportion of these berries will measure one and one-half inches in length. They cannot be surpassed for table or canning purposes. The plant is a strong, erect grower and, unlike most varieties, produces few suckers, but roots from the tips, like raspberries. The blackberry is hardy, having sustained a temperature of 15 to 18 degrees below zero without harm. By midsummer it can be trained in tree form.

Currants and gooseberries belong to this same general garden and are highly profitable. Mulched every spring and so that new wood may grow. The ground should be kept in good manure and cultivation with powdered hellebor for winter protection.

APPETITE FIRST.

Good Digestion Depends on Satisfaction With Meals.

Pleasure is absolutely required for the proper digestion of food, that thrilling telephone message to palate
and stomach which the sight and smell of good things bring about.
This delicious anticipation starts the gastric juices flowing, liberates the secretions of saliva in the mouth, and so prepares the way for speedier digestion and assimilation than would come without it. When the mental pleasantness is absent, in fact, one can never be sure of the stomach's acceptance of food. The nausea one so often feels after eating is a sure indication, among others, that the stomach and palate have had little interest in the diet. Hence the tremendous importance of good cooking,
since the finer qualities of the senses
are needed to charm away the indigestion forever lurking in foodstuffs.

If we could live without eating we surely would, but since we cannot there is nothing to do but get all the good that is to be found in food. The natural waste of the body is one twenty-fourth of its weight daily, and consequently we have to supply like materials. These elements of the body, chemically speaking, are nitrogenous and non-nitrogenous. The nitrogenous foodstuffs are both animal and vegetable, and are taken into the body in the form of proteids, which are subdivided into numerous other essences necessary for life and health.

All of these essences are constructive, the builders of energy, mental and physical. They stimulate the changes natural to the body and generate its heat. When food is badly cooked the power of the unseen helpers is lost or weakened, and malnutrition, if not actual ill health, is the result. It is food which makes our blood, bones, and flesh, so if we want
these good we should have the food
good. That mysterious thing called the soul is also in bondage to the fineness or coarseness of our eating,
all of the substances appropriated
by the veins and lymphatics seeming to change it to some degree.

SPRING WAR ON GOPHERS.

Gophers have begun their early spring work of burrow extension, and immediate steps should be taken toward their extermination, advises Dr. Lee R. Dice, in charge of injurious mammal investigation in the Kansas experiment station.

"Poisoning is the cheaper method where the gophers are numerous, but it is not quite so efficient as trapping," says Dr. Dice. "When one is trapping he may always be sure of just what results are obtained.

"Poisoning is the most effective and easily applied method of ridding a badly infested farm. Some years ago the experiment station at the Kansas State Agricultural college began the manufacture of poisoned corn which proved effective. Openings into the burrows are made with a sharp iron or stick, and the corn as treated is introduced into the runways. Sulphate of strychnine crystals may be purchased also and inserted into raisins, prunes or pieces of sweet potatoes by means of a slit made with a sharp knife and then introduced into the gopher runways in the same manner."

Don't Whip a Child In Anger.

It is absurd to whip a child who is overcome by anger. The best thing to do is to let him alone and let his passion wear itself out. If he could be taken before the anger gets the upper hand of him he might be controlled.

What the parent should do is to study the things which will arouse the child's anger and then avoid these things. It is the height of folly for a parent to excite anger in a child and then try to control it by punishment. It is worse than folly; it is brutal and is likely to ruin the child.—Mother's Magazine.

tain. The handles are quite short and are said to be copied from the stick of the British or French officer. There is no handle in the usual sense of the word, but instead there is a heavy cord loop run through a perforation in the handle, and this is swung over the wrist.

One advantage of the new umbrella is that it may be used for sun protection quite as well as for the rain defense. One feels less foolish starting out in the morning under a cloud, as it were, umbrella in hand or raised above the head, and finding herself equally prepared when the sun unexpectedly pierces the clouds later in the day. Moreover, the gay color seems to anticipate the appearance of the rainbow.

What Is Uric Acid?

THE CAUSE OF BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM, GRAVEL
AND SUDDEN DEATH.

Ever since the discovery of uric acid in the blood by Scheele, in 1775, and the bad effect it had upon the body, scientists and physicians have striven to rid the tissues and the blood of this poison. Because of its overabundance in the system it causes backache, pains here and there, rheumatism, gout, gravel, neuralgia and sciatica. It was Dr. Pierce who discovered a new agent, called "Anuric," which will throw out and completely eradicate this uric acid from the system. "Anuric" has proved to be 37 times more potent than lithia, and consequently you need no longer fear muscular or articular rheumatism or gout, or many other diseases which are dependent on an accumulation of uric acid within the body. Send to Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., for a pamphlet on "Anuric," or send 10 cents for a trial package of "Anuric Tablets."

If you feel that tired, worn-out feeling, backache, neuralgia, or if your sleep is disturbed by too frequent urination, go to your best drug store and ask for Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. They are put up in 50-cent packages.

Doctor Pierce's reputation is back of this medicine and you know that his "Golden Medical Discovery" for the blood and his "Favorite Prescription" for the ills of women have had a splendid reputation for the past fifty years.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequalled as a Liver Pill. One tiny Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cure Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.

sician is quoted as saying:

"I can cure the worst case of insomnia in this manner: When the patient has retired give her a heaping bowl of bread and milk with just a dash of salt to season it. This will draw the blood from the head to the stomach, it will quiet the nerves and put the entire body in a healthy glow, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the patient sleeps restfully."

Another tasty dose to take which will induce sleep is a cold orange just before retiring. There are certain sedative as well as stimulating qualities in an orange, and it is probably one of the most efficacious fruits that can be taken for this purpose.

Putting Women on Land.

Since the beginning of the war the National Land Council of England has been training and placing women on the land for stock-breeding, fruit and market gardening, and other branches of agricultural work. Upwards of 400 women have been training, and over 2,000 have been placed for ordinary farm work and market gardening. They are now organizing individuals and large and small groups for the spring and summer work.

Minced Clams on Toast.

Materials. — Twenty-five clams, four tablespoonfuls melted butter, two tablespoonfuls chopped parsley, salt, pepper and lemon juice and two-thirds cupful clam liquor.

Directions.—Open and mince the clams, saving all the liquor. Melt the butter, add the minced clams and liquor, cook three minutes and put in the parsley and lemon juice. Heat thoroughly, season and serve on toast.

Apple Snowballs.

Boil two teacupfuls of rice in milk until nearly done; then strain it, pare and core as many apples as there are portions to be served, put a small quantity of sugar and a clove in each apple, lay on a small floured cloth, covering each with rice, tie each ball separately and then boil until the apples are tender. Half an hour will usually be enough. Serve with a good Rocky mountain sauce.

Scarcity of Bottles.

Empty bottles are being collected and sold by Boy Scouts in Belfast. The scarcity of bottles at present makes this a very remunerative occupation. The movement originated with the Boy Scouts' Association, of which the Lord Mayor is president, the idea being to raise funds to provide a recreation hut at the front.

Escaloped Cabbage.

Cook cabbage in boiling salted water until tender, drain and chop if desired, put in a buttered baking dish, pour over a white sauce, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until brown.

Raisin Clusters With Salted Almonds

Take small clusters of selected raisins, make a small incision in blossom end of each raisin and remove the seeds. In each incision force a salted almond, leaving more than half the almond exposed.

LETTER FROM PTE. JAS. STEVENS

June 23rd, 1916.
Dear Sister:—
I received your ever welcome letter,
it is the first Canadian letter that I have received. I received your letter with the picture in it and it was very good.
I am still in the hospital and improving slowly, I am getting the best of treatment. Am sorry to tell you that I had the misfortune to lose my other foot, they are very painful but I must put up with it.
Your loving brother,
JIM.

T. 2 Ward, 23 Gen. Hos.,
B. E. F. 24-6-16.

Dear mother, dad and all:—
As you see I am still in hospital in France. I am glad to be able to tell you that I am slightly, tho' slowly improving. They are all very kind to me here in the hospital.
They all—doctors, sisters and orderlies—do everything in their power to make us comfortable.
They took a bullet out of my leg
to-day (and he is very proud of it too—Chaplain.)
I am to undergo another operation on my right leg very soon.
I have received only one letter
since I was wounded; I should like very much to have letters. I hope you are well at home.
I will now close with love to all.
Your loving son,
JAMES.

June 17th 1916.
Dear Mother:—
Just a few lines to let you know that I am well hoping that you are the same. I am still in the hospital in France and improving slowly. I get very good treatment, the best that can be expected. My left leg is very painful as I had my foot amputated a few days ago, now I have neither feet but I must hope for the best. I think I will be going to England in a few more weeks. How are all the people? I hope they are all well.
I will close now with love to all.
From your loving son,
JIM.

SHELLS FOR HUNS MADE AT THE EXHIBITION

Deliveries to Germans Through the Gun Muzzles of the Allies.

Though munitions of War are being turned out in hundreds of Canadian factories few but the men actually engaged in the work know anything of the system employed, the process being one of the most closely guarded of War secrets. The veil will be lifted when the Canadian National Exhibition opens on Aug. 26. Permission has been obtained from the War Office, through the Canadian Government, to show the processes of manufacture and several machines, operated by skilled workmen, will be engaged for the two weeks turning out shells and projectiles for delivery to the Huns through the gun muzzles of the Allies.
